HRAI -Building Officials Guide to Understanding HVAC Building Code Requirements

This is a 1-day course that has been specifically designed for building officials. HRAI has put together a curriculum that outlines the building science related to ventilation and air change design (ducts); ventilation requirements, changes with the new CSA F280-12, CAN/CSA-F326, and a review of key requirements for heating and air-conditioning systems. Typical installation procedures and code requirements will be presented using photographs of installed systems and other documentation.

Topics that will be discussed include:

- ❖ Understanding the changes in heat loss and heat gain calculation methods introduced in new CSA F280-12 Standard and their impact on sizing heating & cooling equipment.
- ❖ Reviewing the ventilation requirements outlined in CSA F-326 and section 9.32 of the building code.
- ❖ Learning about different types of ventilation systems, supply air distribution strategies, and ventilation equipment (HRV/ERV)
- ❖ Recognizing key areas to check when reviewing a submitted ventilation design and doing a site check for ventilation installation.
- ❖ Learning about good engineering practices and guidelines for forced air system design and installation with respect to inlet/outlet locations, equipment & duct size selection, and duct installation/sealing.
