Thursday April 2nd: Conference & AGM

9 am- 10:00 am

Reviewing the Installation and Performances of Unvented Roof Assemblies in Residential Construction by Andrew Cole

The CUFCA presentation will review the use of two-pound closed cell spray foam in residential roof assemblies. A review of building code requirements will be presented, an explanation of the installation process used in construction, mandatory on-site quality control and what to look for as a building official, along with the field quality control program used by the Canadian Urethane Foam Contractors Association.

10:20 am – 11:30 am

Strategies for improvement of air, moisture and thermal control in above/below-grade wall assemblies by Joe Innocente

The use of continuous insulation has been demonstrated to improve thermal efficiency of exterior wall assemblies. However, the best thermal control layer will not provide the expected level of performance when the air and moisture control layers are not being adequately taken care of. In this presentation you will learn strategies for a successful design.

Lunch on own

1 pm- 2 pm

Midrise Wood Building by Nick Shou

A case study will be provided to demonstrate what new midrise buildings will look like and explain the importance behind each of the compensatory measures.
